TROOPS NOT GIVEN PLACE OF HONOR

Unfortunate Occurrence Precedes
Unveiling of Jackson Monument.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Charleston, W. Va., September 27.—To participate in the ceremonies attendant upon the unveiling of the statue of General Stonewall Jackson, erected upon the State Capitol grounds by the Daughters of the Confederacy, former members of the gray from this and adjoining States, some of them who fought under the great general's command, gathered here to-day. High officers of the United Confederate Veterans and of the United Daughters of the Confederacy participated in the ceremonies. General Bennett H. Young of Louisville, commander Department Army of Tennessee, being in charge.

Mr. Moses Ezekiel, the artist and sculptor, who designed the statue from memory, and who was a pupil of General Jackson, delivered an address. A feature of the ceremonies was a parade participated in by three companies of State militia and a company of cadets from the Virginia Military Institute, where General Jackson attended school and received his first training along military lines. The famous Stonewall Brigade Band, of Staunton, was here for the occasion.

While Governor Glasscock was absent, two former Governors, Atkinson and Dawson, and several of the Supreme Court judges were present and along the streets adjoining the Capitol to witness the ceremonies. Only one thing marred the proceedings. It was the placing of the West Virginia National Guard, which under the military law is now a part of the United States Army, to the rear, after it had been definitely understood they would only head the procession, and the sending of the Virginia Military Institute cadets to head the procession after the march had started. The change was made by the chief marshal, Dr. Churchman, and when discovered by the Adjutant-General's department the troops were ordered from the line and to their armory. The Adjutant-General a few moments later called them out and marched them to a spot alongside the monument.

The city was gallily decorated for the occasion with American and Confederate flags. Just before noon the veil was pulled from the statue by Mrs. B. C. Green, president of Charleston Chapter, No. 151, United Daughters of the Confederacy, while a squad of Virginia Military Institute cadets fired a salute. The statue of General Jackson was erected as a memorial to the Confederate soldiers and is a result of the efforts of Charleston Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy. Upon petition of that organization the Legislature of 1905 adopted a resolution granting permission to Charleston Chapter, No. 151, to erect a monument in memory of the wearers of the gray on the Capitol grounds. Principally through private subscriptions funds were raised, and Ezekiel was employed to make a likeness of his former friend, which was done in marble. General Jackson being a West Virginian, his likeness was decided upon as the most appropriate.

The monument is twenty-one feet high, with a base of Italian marble. The statue is eight feet high, made of bronze.

DAZZLING NIGHTS AT STATE FAIR

Experts Now Busy Installing
Most Surprising Effects in Electric Illumination.

LIVE STOCK CARS COMING

Many Exhibits Must Be in Place
To-Morrow, Including Woman's Work.

The most important and interesting work now being rushed at the Fair Grounds in preparation for the opening of the fifth annual exhibition of the State Fair of Virginia next Monday is that in connection with the electric installation. The plans for this work, which are being carried out by City Electrician Thompson with orders carte blanche, provide for the most elaborate outdoor illumination ever witnessed in America, outside of the great parks at Coney Island, and will be a revelation to visitors of the artistic genius of Richmond in the picturesque presentation of electric effects.

The brilliance of this night illumination will be visible for miles, bringing forth in radiant outline the impressive proportions of the new Industrial Hall under the dazzling rays of a battery of searchlights placed on the grandstand roof. From whichever gate the visitor enters by night, the outlook will present a dazzling vista, with kaleidoscopic changes at every turn, and the whole way through the grounds will be a veritable passage through Fairyland.

No Whips This Year.
Moreover, this passage will be safe, the demons of whips and ticklers are forever banished from the grounds, and should, by chance, a bad fairy get by the guardians at the gates, there will be a corps of special police (no fairies these, but the real article), and an electric signal box at every turn to bring them on the run, in case of crowd or rush, trouble or sign of trouble. The invitation of the Virginia State Fair Association to the people of the Old Dominion and of all the world to come to the fifth annual exhibition is accompanied by a full guarantee of protection to the comfort and safety of all.

Superb Night Spectacle.
The centrepiece of the night show at the fair this year is the stupendous spectacular production, with sensational illumination effects, entitled "A Night in Japan." One of the leading features of this production is an illuminated aerial ballet, with startling effects originating in the wizardry of the Japanese and first presented at the Mikado's court.

In the presentation of this spectacle through the capitals of Europe the modern magic of electric lighting was enlisted to enhance its effects, and its production next week at the State Fair will be the culmination of Oriental imagery developed by the genius of electricity. The fireworks display, which will be the grand finale of each night of the fair, will be a most superb exposition of the grandeur and beauty of the art of pyrotechnics at an expense of $10,000 a night, presented by the National Fireworks Company, of Boston, which was awarded the contract because of the novelty and brilliance of its display.

Car Loads of Exhibits Arriving.
The unloading facilities of the platform at the railroad siding at the Fair Grounds were tested yesterday when the first big consignments of car load

Exhibitors having made entries for the classes in the woman's building are requested to remember that their exhibits must be delivered at the Fair Grounds before 5 o'clock, as no exhibits can be received after that hour. This rule applies to all exhibits for the woman's building.

Ing, except bread, cake, pies and Pastry.

Big Advance Sale of Tickets.
Box tickets for the grandstand were placed on sale at noon yesterday at the fair office, and though no advance notice was given, the calls from people who had been clamoring for days and had placed their orders by mail or telephone for the first choice have taken a larger number of boxes than were ever disposed of at a first day's sale, and the choice seats are going rapidly. The price of general admission will be the same as last year—50 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Due notice will be given of the places assigned for advance sale.

Virginia May Arrange Series With Leading Southern Colleges.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Charlottesville, Va., September 27.—The two literary societies of the University of Virginia have not yet completed arrangements for the intercollegiate debates to be held during the season. However, there is a tentative proposal to have a pentangular debate, instead of the triangular debate of last year, to include Virginia, the University of North Carolina, Vanderbilt, University of Georgia and Tulane. Of the debaters and orators of last session, Hirsch, Curry, Holland, Settle and Wood have graduated, and Ewing failed to return. Therefore the old men who will form the nucleus of this year's teams are Davis and Wallerstein.
